About Us

Eastern and Central Community Trust's vision is to help build stronger, more sustainable communities. We do this through a range of initiatives, from funding grants to helping with collaboration and capacity building, and providing networking opportunities to organisations of all sizes.

Our work is inter-generational and our funds are invested in perpetuity – which means we plan to be here for a very long time. We carefully manage our investment funds to ensure we have the money to give out grants each year. We want to work on helping with short and long-term solutions for our communities, and we will also make sure that, over time, we give fairly across all of our regions.

Eastern and Central Community Trust's region stems from its origins as a savings bank, which was established in 1962. In 1972 it merged with the Manawatū-Wairarapa Savings Bank to form the Eastern and Central Savings Bank.

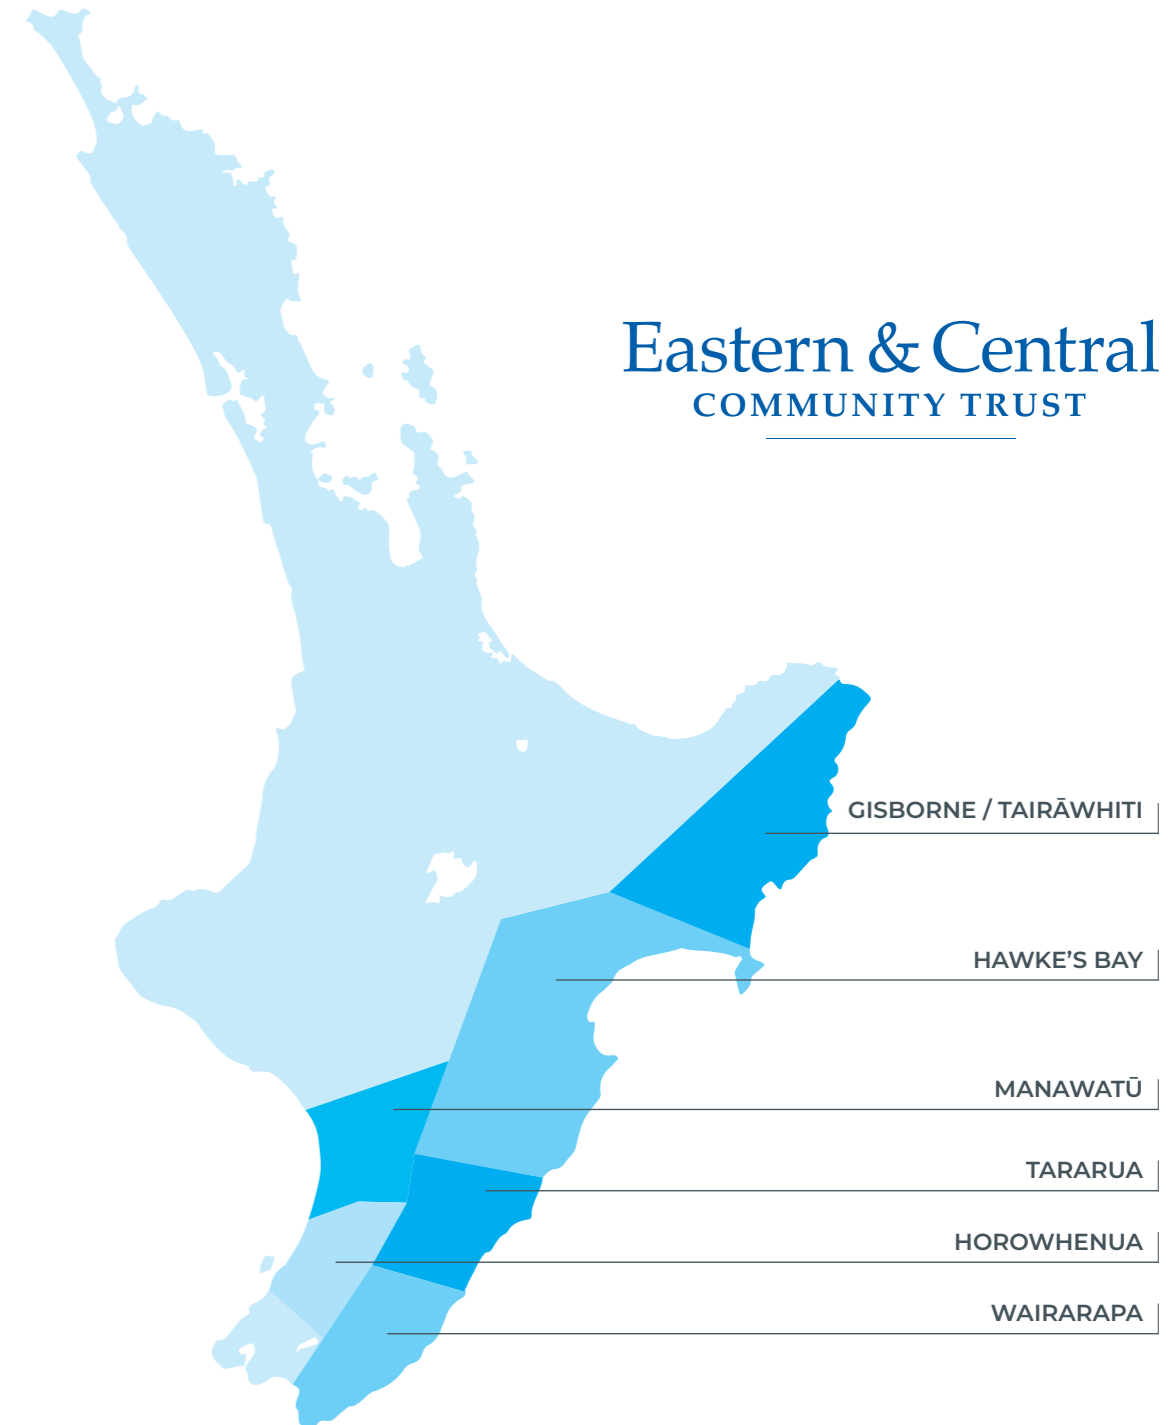

When the government deregulated the banking industry in 1988 'Trust Bank Eastern and Central Community Trust Inc' was formed. The Trust was provided with shares in the Trust Bank Group to the value of $11.8M to hold for the benefit of the communities within the defined region. Although the region is specifically defined, it broadly covers the Gisborne/Tairāwhiti District, Hawke's Bay, Tararua, Wairarapa, Manawatū and Horowhenua, being the region of the original Eastern and Central Savings Bank.

In 1996 Westpac Bank purchased the Trust Bank Group and the Trust sold its shares for $109M. The starting capital of the Trust was set at $90M with $19M set aside in reserves. The proceeds from the sale were invested into a diversified range of asset classes (fixed interest, equities, property and cash), within New Zealand and overseas. Once Trust Bank Group was sold the Trust dispensed with the 'Trust Bank' title and is now known as 'Eastern and Central Community Trust Inc'.

The Trust has increased its capital by over 80% from $90M to $166M, which more than covers inflation and population increases over this time, maintaining the real value of the Trust for future generations. It is the investment returns from these funds that has enabled the Trust to provide grants, and the Trust has provided over $135M in grants to its communities since 1988.

The Trust comprises a Board of up to 12 trustees, representing the various regions within the Trust area, who are appointed by the Minister of Finance. Terms of appointment are usually for four years, and trustees may serve more than one term.

Eastern & Central COMMUNITY TRUST

Chair and General Manager's Report

Kia ora koutou

It is always a pleasure bringing you the Annual Report for Eastern and Central Community Trust (ECCT). It gives us the opportunity to reflect on the year that has been, as well as appreciate the amazing work being done in our region, thanks to the vision and foresight of community organisations who receive funding from ECCT.

The past year has been one that will go down in history due to the emergence of the COVID-19 Pandemic. Whether directly or indirectly, it has affected almost everyone on the planet. It has certainly affected Eastern and Central Community Trust this year in more ways than one – you will notice the word 'COVID-19' in most of the following report summaries.

Despite the challenges however, we continue to see community groups and organisations getting on with their ventures, for the betterment of their communities, the best way they can. Their determination and achievements are inspiring to see.

Trustees and Staff

In July 2020 we farewelled and thanked Anna Hansen and Bryan Guy for their eight and four years' service respectively. Both had contributed fully to the Trust, taking on leadership roles and working hard to assist the Trust in moving forward with its strategy delivery. Their work ethic, attention to detail and big picture views, commitment to excellence and their communities, were very much appreciated.

We welcomed four new Trustees from across our region. Rena Kohere (Gisborne), Hilary Humphrey (Feilding), Gail Munro (Palmerston North) and Tom Hullena (Masterton) bring new perspectives, experience, skills and enthusiasm to the Trust's work.

As well as our Board, our staff must be acknowledged and thanked, especially for the effort they put in during lockdown and assisting organisations with applications. The way we worked changed, and staff coped admirably with working remotely from home and the challenges that involved. Staff wellbeing was most important during this time, and we learnt to connect and interact in different ways.

Investments

COVID-19 impacted our year-end figures for March 2020 with a substantial drop in the value of our investments. Since then, markets have strengthened mainly due to governments' fiscal stimulus packages in response to COVID-19.

Our March 2021 year-end result was a surplus of $34 million, which was very pleasing. Trustees agreed to strengthen our capital base by a further $10.8 million and our balance sheet remains strong. We are holding good levels of cash, which allow us to grant at present levels for the next two to three years without being impacted by any adverse global financial market events.

We are now starting to see good returns from our investment in Private Equity with some great results. My Food Bags listing on the NZ Stock Exchange provided an exciting result for investors. We have $25 million invested in Private equity funds and have committed to invest in a further two new funds in the coming year.

Granting

The past financial year saw our team assess and approve grants for 456 organisations, worth $4.19M.

The grants varied from as little as $750 for uniforms for Feilding Amateur Swimming Club and $920 for Featherston Hockey Club's umpire fees; to $190,000 for Whangawehi Catchment Management Group's cycle and walkways in Mahia, and $200,000 for Central Hawke's Bay District Council's 'Nga Ara Tipuna', a new trail of eight sites of cultural and natural significance around Waipukurau and Takapau.

Overall our approved grants were behind what we budgeted. This was largely because of Central Government relief packages and support, and a slowdown in large community facilities projects, both due to COVID-19.

We expected an uplift in the 2021-22 year and have seen that in the first few months of the new financial year with more applications and grants in the pipeline. This is heartening to see as our communities adjust to working in a new way.

During the year Trustees provided flexibility for applicants by allowing Community Asset Fund applications to be considered at each Board meeting – six times rather than twice a year. The Board also committed to carry over some of last year's unspent Community Assets and Facilities Fund budget, with the expectation that these projects will recommence in 2021-22.

Our Annual Public Meeting (APM) was a casualty of COVID-19. Originally scheduled to be held in Gisborne, the Trustees took the responsible course by holding a virtual APM. Trustees are looking forward to holding the APM in Gisborne in August 2021 and visiting local organisations who have received grants from ECCT.

Rangatahi Project

As part of our strategy and new fund development, we instigated the Eastern and Central Community Trust Rangatahi Project.

Over a series of wānanga, workshops and conversations, ECCT's dedicated group of 15 rangatahi listened to the thoughts, experiences, challenges and aspirations of over 400 young people from throughout ECCT's rohe.

From this kōrero our rōpu taiohi put together a Rangatahi Action Plan, which will guide the Trust's funding decisions over the next five years, in order to support young people aged 10-24 years to reach their potential.

While the Plan is still in draft form, we expect to make an announcement about this exciting new development in the very near future.

Youth-led Fund – by youth, for youth

As part of the initial stages of the Rangatahi Action Plan, ECCT committed to a $50,000 Youth-led Fund for projects led by young people aged between 12 and 24 years. Individuals and groups of rangatahi can apply for up to $5,000. Applications are assessed and administered by ECCT's rōpu taiohi.

So far, nine applications have been approved, with a combined total of $16,657. It is pleasing to see the approved projects spread throughout our rohe and we look forward to seeing the array of projects making a positive impact on their respective communities.

Looking to the future, we want to develop our funding strategy for our Rangatahi initiative, develop and operationalise our Strategic and Innovation Funds and October will see our five-yearly review of our Strategic Plan.

Finally, yet importantly, we would like to acknowledge the community organisations that we fund. The past 12 months have been very trying for many, with sources of funding and fundraising initiatives being reduced and, in some cases, unable to proceed. We see ourselves as supporters of organisations who do the hard mahi in our communities. Thank you for your extraordinary time and effort.

What We Fund

At Eastern and Central Community Trust our aim is to support community initiatives that can help build stronger, more sustainable communities in the regions we fund.

We look for applications that align with our priority outcomes, and if possible, also work with our strategic focus areas (see page 9).

We currently have two funds that organisations can apply to; The Grassroots Fund and Capital Assets and Facilities Fund (CAFF).

Grassroots Fund

The Grassroots Fund is the largest component of the ECCT funding framework. Our region is large and has diverse communities with different needs and aspirations. The purpose of the Grassroots Fund is to ensure that these communities have access to services, events and initiatives that they value.

Our Grassroots Fund has four funding pathways; Participation, Service, Development and Education.

Under each pathway, the fund can support:

- Operating costs
- Programme costs
- Coaching
- Events
- Equipment
- Small assets
- Vehicles
- Repairs and maintenance
- Grassroots, regional or local activities

Community Assets & Facilities Fund (CAFF)

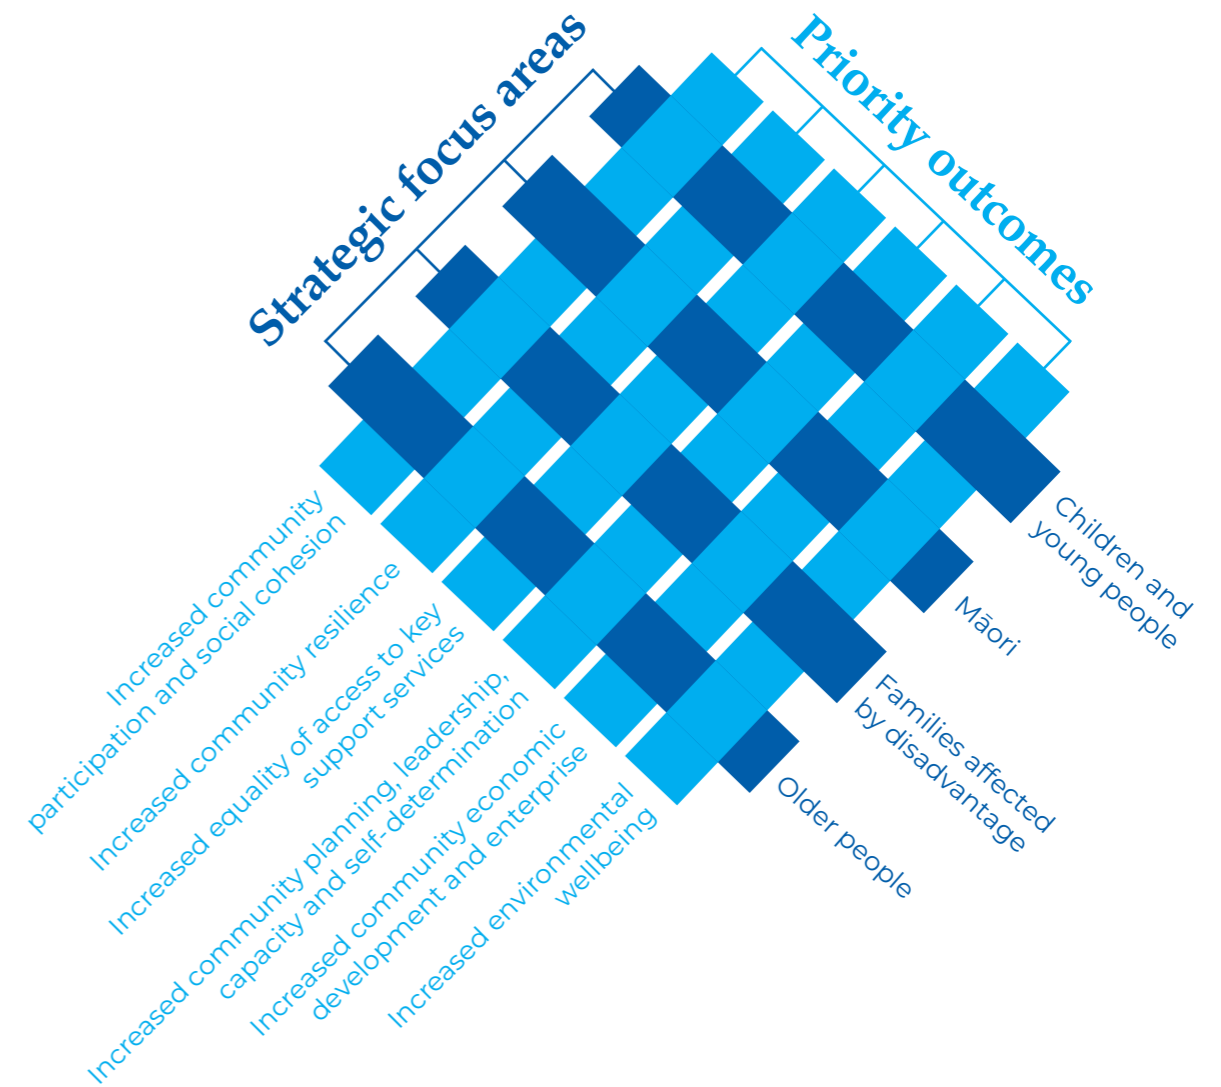

The Community Assets and Facilities Fund (CAFF) is for capital projects that need to be built, developed or maintained in order for communities to meaningfully participate in community life.

We operate alongside a range of other funders and stakeholders. We are unlikely to fully fund a project by ourselves and may ask if you have other funders arranged, and how much you will be putting towards a project yourselves.

We recommend organisations come and see us or give us a call to have an informal chat before applying.

Strategic Intentions for Impact

To achieve impact towards our vision, we have identified priority outcomes and strategic focus areas:

Gisborne Boardriders Club sharing the stoke

For the Gisborne Boardriders Club, their ultimate goal is to 'share the stoke' – the feeling of happiness, connectedness, thrill and excitement that surfing brings.

A new, purpose-built trailer, partly funded by Eastern and Central Community Trust, is helping the Club achieve that goal by giving members the ability to transport equipment to various communities to promote participation.

“Our previous trailer was more than 20 years old and although it was well maintained, it was too small for our current equipment, which restricted mobility,” Gisborne Boardriders Club Treasurer, Andrew McCulloch says.

“Our aim is to create more opportunities for kids and communities who wouldn't otherwise have the opportunity to surf, and this trailer allows us to do that.”

Established in 1964, Gisborne Boardriders Club offers a range of programmes for people of all ages and backgrounds – from under 14 'rippers', to youth at risk, women's surfing and surfing for farmers, to coaching and development for more serious surfers.

“Our Club also facilitates inter-club exchanges between different areas of Gisborne and by developing these relationships, young and old, we believe we're also building more cohesive and understanding communities.”

“As surfers ourselves, we know the lifelong physical and mental health benefits that can occur when people are introduced to surfing. It is a relatively inexpensive sport, available on our doorstep, which develops resilience, common bonds and togetherness.

“Together with our partners and the help of the Gisborne community, we aim to establish a generationally sustainable platform for the development and growth of surfing,” Andrew says.

Tai Chi Club brings out inner smile

As its name suggests, Inner Smile Tai Chi Club Inc., in Palmerston North, focuses on the inner well-being of its members, and fosters a philosophy of smiling from the inside out.

Established in 2013 after the demise of the RSA Tai Chi Club, Inner Smile Tai Chi Club now has over 100 members, comprising mainly older men and women, many of whom have been referred by medical practitioners to maintain health and wellness.

Club Officer, Tony van Rysewyk, says their 'Inner Smile' programme, which is run twice a week, concentrates on 'inner health', addressing conditions like arthritis and diabetes, and focussing on correct breathing, balance, and flexibility.

"Our inner wellness produces our 'inner smile'," Tony says.

"For us oldies, this describes very much a large part of what we want to achieve."

The club operates on the basis of all income derived from session fees, apart from administration costs and hall rent, being dispersed back to members by way of subsidies towards the cost of various social functions during the year.

"The social aspect of our club is vitally important as they alleviate social isolation and loneliness, which is common in the older age group.

"Last year we were beset by several closures due to the Covid-19 pandemic, which meant that the Club had no income for several months. This severely affected our ability to provide subsidised social events for our members.

"The grant from Eastern and Central Community Trust was put towards administration costs and hall rent, so that we could free up the money set aside for those costs towards subsidies for our members.

"As Sallie, one of our longest members, said recently, 'Most of us are on a pension only and cannot afford to spend a lot on social events like meals out. The Club's subsidies make these outings affordable for us'.

"So, for Sallie, and many of our other members, we can now provide them with Tai Chi and social events at a price that is sustainable for them, thanks to Eastern and Central Community Trust."

Wharetiti Māori Culture Group

Wharetiti Māori Culture Group is a waiata and kapa haka group that has a long and proud history in the Tararua and Manawatū regions.

Based in Woodville, the group was established in 1964 by Woodville man, Dick Mudford, along with a group of community elders, who wanted to reconnect tamariki and rangatahi with their heritage through te reo classes, waiata and kapa haka.

One of Wharetiti's biggest projects was assisting with the funding and building of Woodville's Te Ahu a Turanga Marae as a cultural home for the entire community. The marae is available to everyone and contains carvings representing every iwi in New Zealand, including Pākehā.

Wharetiti is now managed by Dick's son, Joel Mudford, and his wife, Mirianna, who continue the important legacy of teaching tamariki and rangatahi their heritage, and providing them with new cultural experiences. "The purpose of our group changed slightly about four years ago when we recognised a growing number of teenage suicides in New Zealand," Mirianna says.

"We wanted to address the concern by being role models for our rangatahi."

The group received a $4,000 grant from Eastern and Central Community Trust to go towards facilitating weekly kapa haka meetings and marae nohos (stays). There are currently 25 members in the group, both adults and children, who meet once a week during the school term, as well as perform upon request from community groups and organisations. Over the years they have performed at marae throughout the country, pōwhiri for neighbouring communities, host poi making workshops and help with tree planting days.

"We meet up and learn new waiata or brush up on old ones, but we mainly use it to encourage and feed our kids and reconnect with them. A lot of them use Wharetiti as a place of freedom of speech, where they're not judged and are able to ask for help on certain issues they may be facing.

"The difference we see in our rangatahi is pride. Being a proud Māori rangatahi isn't something we saw four years ago. We thought that if we showed them what their tipuna achieved 400 years ago to today, then they would have a deeper understanding on how precious their lineage is.

"We've seen the shyest kids who never spoke a word in front of more than two people, perform on stage and join in on our reflection circle to tell us how much confidence they've achieved in less than two months. We've seen a more sense of direction for their future that involves being strong Māori people. We're proud of the hard work these kids have put into Wharetiti and the love they will always carry with them," Mirianna says.

New van crucial to Women's Refuge service

Every night in New Zealand, more than 167 women and children are too afraid to stay at home because of family violence*.

Women's Refuge provides a safe place to stay, as well as education and information, for women and children affected by family violence, but with New Zealand holding some of the highest reported rates of domestic violence in the developed world, it's becoming increasingly difficult to meet the financial needs of this essential service.

Recognising the crucial lifeline Women's Refuge provides, Eastern and Central Community Trust provided the Palmerston North branch with a $15,000 grant towards a new van, which will benefit children, youth and women in the Manawatū, Horowhenua and Tararua regions.

"The van will provide a safe and reliable vehicle to collect children, youth and women from schools and homes on a weekly basis, so they can attend the various programmes we offer," Women's Refuge Palmerston North Manager, Zubeda Shariff says.

"The new van will enable us to transport more clients at one time as the need for our services is increasing."

The programmes offered at Women's Refuge Palmerston North advocate, support and educate clients. Zubeda says the van is an integral tool in accomplishing their vision of "All women and children in Aotearoa New Zealand living free from domestic and family violence".

Community radio station more accessible

When Wairarapa residents want to find out what's going on and hear different voices from within their own community, they tune into Arrow FM 92.7.

Arrow FM is one of 12 Community Access Radio Stations spread throughout New Zealand, and the only one in Wairarapa that provides broadcasting facilities for the diverse cultures and special interest groups which make up their own unique communities.

Arrow FM Manager, Michael Wilson, says the station's programmes include those from the disability community, students and older people, as well as a variety of ethnicities, cultures, ideologies and faiths.

"Our service is to the wider community as well as the groups who broadcast from our facility," Michael says.

"The purpose is to inform society about the diverse peoples living in our midst."

Arrow FM received a $4,000 grant from Eastern and Central Community Trust to construct user-friendly production systems, enabling use by all members of the community – regardless of technical skills.

"Providing this technically enhanced but easily operated service ensures that no community groups (current or potential) are prevented from expressing their information, views and cultures. Access is central to our mission and this project removes all barriers to full access.

"The new system benefits many of the diverse groups already using the facility but wanting simpler operation, especially those with impaired motor coordination or technophobia. It will also benefit many new user groups who are more likely to accept our services if operation is simple, thus increasing our reach/diversity and fulfilling our community function."

Janette Wallace Gedge, a Trustee of Cobblestones Museum and Early Settlers' Village, Greytown, has a regular radio show on Access Radio and says the new system makes it very easy for her to switch to slideshows that she uses in her programme.

"It's really useful to be able to show viewers photos of articles in the Museum's collection that I am talking about. The button pad, which was part of the system upgrade, is very easy to use, and it means I can concentrate on the content of the programme rather than having to think about the technology," Janette says.

English Language Partners New Zealand (ELPNZ)

English Language Partners New Zealand helps ensure former refugee and migrant adults can participate successfully in all aspects of New Zealand life, by teaching English and assisting the settlement of people who do not have English as a first language.

The non-profit, community-based organisation currently has 6,526 adults learning English from their 22 centres nationwide. Eastern and Central Community Trust assisted centres in Hawke's Bay, Palmerston North and Horowhenua with a $10,000 grant towards managers' salaries.

"It's difficult to make a new life in New Zealand when your English is limited, so it is important we take time to listen carefully to the needs and goals of our prospective learners," Manager of ELPNZ Horowhenua Kapiti, David Harris says.

"As managers we are usually the first to meet those seeking help. We record their details, get to know them and gauge what English they already have. We aim to find the most promising setting for them to improve their English.

"We also ensure there will be skilled help available – we recruit, train and advise volunteer home tutors and paid group tutors."

David says nothing beats the feedback from clients' who notice an improvement in their English or their participation in New Zealand life – often both.

One client, Carolina, says, "The tutor... has been great support, super responsible and empathetic. She spent long time helping me with my CV to apply for the job I finally got. I have been enjoying her guidance and the conversation we have. I really appreciate your support and the quality of the service you deliver; it means a lot for me."

Vilmary, another client, adds "I am very grateful for the excellent classes and services from all of you."

"Without the support of Eastern and Central Community Trust, these new kiwis wouldn't have the same opportunities to learn about everyday life in New Zealand. It is satisfying to be a part of the journey of newcomers and their families achieving their aspirations in our beautiful country." David says.

Volunteers well equipped for rugged terrain rescues

With its vast mountain ranges and prevalent agricultural, logging and fishing industries involving heavy machinery and rugged accessways, Wairarapa Search and Rescue has its fair share of search and rescue (SAR) operations.

In 2020 alone, Wairarapa Search and Rescue volunteers were involved in 24 SAR operations. They also attended 16 local training events along with two regional SAR exercises.

While there is no shortage of volunteers to assist when the red flag goes up, the Wairarapa Rescue Trust was established in 1990 to support Wairarapa Search and Rescue with the provision of equipment and meeting training costs.

“The Rescue Trust was set up to assist with aircraft hire costs for emergency search, rescue and ambulance services where such costs cannot be recovered elsewhere,” Wairarapa Rescue Trust Secretary, Sam Milligan says.

“We also provide air search, rescue and ambulance equipment to serve people within a 100km radius of Masterton.”

Wairarapa Rescue Trust received a $2,500 grant from Eastern and Central Community Trust to assist the training of 12 search and rescue volunteers in techniques associated with alpine snow and ice conditions, often encountered while searching at higher altitudes in the Tararua and Remutaka Ranges during winter months.

“We are very grateful to have the support of Eastern and Central Community Trust. It is reassuring for our community to know that our volunteers are trained and equipped for any SAR operations that arise and that loved ones working in high risk industries are in good hands, should they ever need it,” Sam says.

LIFT Youth Employment Charitable Trust

Young jobseekers have the opportunity to be supported into sustainable and fulfilling employment and self-employment thanks to LIFT Social Enterprise, an organisation with a mission of 100 percent youth employment or self-employment in Hawke's Bay.

LIFT provides work-readiness programmes, resources, tools, training, work experience and pastoral support to Hawke's Bay youth aged 16 to 24 years. Activities and services are also offered to employers, creating wrap-around pastoral care and pathways to transition young people into employment or self-employment.

With national data showing that youth experienced unemployment post COVID-19 at a rate more than double other New Zealanders, in August 2020 LIFT embarked on a venture called 'LIFT Business - Creating Jobs Creating Futures', focusing on enterprise development and job creation for unemployed young people, specifically Māori youth.

LIFT Business Co-ordinator, Moana Hamilton-Neville, says the Creating Jobs Creating Futures project educates, trains and coaches rangatahi on the fundamentals of developing and owning their own business.

"We work with youth to develop their business skills, knowledge and confidence through a proven business development approach," Moana said.

"We are aiming to have 70 rangatahi participate in the project, resulting in 30 business models and at least 20 self-employment outcomes.

"Not only will they be creating their own employment opportunities, but if their businesses experience growth, they will be increasing incomes and creating employment in their own communities too.

"Rangatahi continue to ask us to help them develop their ideas to make them a reality. Based on this experience, we know that this project, as well as creating jobs for a number of rangatahi in our community and upskilling many more, will also generate business and contributes to fuelling the local economy, in a time when economic activity is crucial."

Eastern and Central Community Trust provided a $15,000 grant towards Creating Jobs Creating Futures, covering the cost of associated business workshops, clinics and coaching.

COMMENT FROM RANGATAHI

Arihia – working with LIFT on her art and design dreams

I've always had an interest in screen printing, but I didn't know much about it. By coming in and doing the training, I now have heaps more knowledge about the whole process from start to finish and it's good to have that practical experience finally.

I have been able to update my CV with this experience and also create a portfolio for my art. Being around the screen-printing stuff inspired me to get back in touch with my creative side and I have been producing heaps of art and LIFT has even bought some of it to print on to tops and sell. For the future, I want to look into ta moko training and maybe become a ta moko artist.

Kaitlyn – works in the 'Creating Jobs, Creating Futures' retail space and makes art

LIFT and the Bounce course helped me gain more confidence. I was very shy when I started my job here and now I am a lot more open. My job has helped me become very motivated, I love waking up and knowing that I am coming in for a day of work. It is my happy place.

Kids get onboard skateboarding programme

The simple yet exhilarating sport of skateboarding is making a come back with young New Zealanders thanks to Onboard Skate Inc.

Since it was founded in 2012, Onboard Skate Inc. has run hundreds of learn-to-skateboard programmes in over 150 schools throughout the north island - improving children's confidence, resilience and wellbeing one programme at a time. The organisation provides programmes for children and youth of all ages, adults, children with special needs, women and girls.

Steve Hodges and partner, Janet Sayers, of Palmerston North, established Onboard Skate Inc. after they recognised a declining number of children and youth participating in traditional, organised sports.

"School sport these days has such a hyper competitive culture to it, and its focus on talent identification sees those less talented lose confidence and not wanting to participate," Steve says.

"Our in-school skateboarding programme helps students become more physically active and unlike traditional sports, it focuses on personal progress and lifelong learning with engaging, action-centred, enjoyable and non-judgemental activities.

"Our programmes give children and young people opportunities to nurture and strengthen connections with other like-minded people and to link with potential mentors. We achieve this with community-led programmes, coordinated and run by local skateboarders."

Onboard Skate Inc. received a $5,000 grant from Eastern and Central Community Trust to go towards the cost of skateboarding instructors to deliver programmes in the Horowhenua region.

"The grant from Eastern and Central Community Trust has helped us achieve our vision of 'enhancing life outcomes for children whose social and family/whanau circumstances place at risk their chances of achieving positive education, social and health outcomes'. We do this by using skateboarding activities and exposure to skateboarding culture to teach social skills, such as personal and social responsibility.

"Our mission is to provide opportunities for young people to learn and practice leadership, citizenship and life skills that will empower them to become competent and productive members of society," Steve says.

Monique Gunther, a Learning Support Coordinator at Taitoko School in Levin, said she liked the fact that students learnt about setting goals, working as a team and experiencing success outside the classroom during the Onboard Skate programme.

When asked what they thought about the Onboard Skate Inc. programme, a Taitoko School student replied "It is fantastic. I learnt how to balance on the skateboard. There were challenges, like going on the ramps, but I just kept practicing and got better. The teacher was patient with me, and kind. We laughed together sometimes. I would like to have skateboarding again because I am getting better..."

Woodville Art & History Inc.'s new home is as vibrant as its exhibitions

Despite being a small town with a population of less than 2,000, Woodville has a thriving arts presence thanks to the dedicated members of Woodville Art & History Inc.

Formerly the 'The Woodville Pioneer Museum Society', the group recently acquired the former Woodville library and i-SITE building in the main street of Woodville, to house and display their art, along with historical artefacts documenting the early days of Woodville and the evolution of farming, railways and businesses in the area.

"Previously our group didn't have a fixed abode so we held art exhibitions annually at the Woodville Racecourse," Woodville Art & History Inc. member, Paula McCool says.

"However, many visitors missed out on attending the exhibitions due to its concealed location and artists were keen to have a permanent place to exhibit their art."

Woodville Art & History Inc. received a grant of $4,000 from Eastern and Central Community Trust to paint the exterior of their new building, giving it a new lease of life and ensuring it stands out to visitors passing through.

"The paint colour scheme was chosen by one of our member artists and we are very pleased with the result. We have had lots of comments from people saying that it looks great.

"Now we have a permanent gallery there will be art on display seven days a week and the exhibitions will change every three or four weeks. We have four separate art spaces using the walls, and there is room for sculpture and other media using plinths throughout the gallery. We have 72 members, but art comes from non-members as well, from anywhere in the country.

"The new historical gallery will tell the story of the settlement of Woodville in a more appealing way with large photographs and props.

"The new space is connected to the Lindauer Replica Studio, which has just celebrated its 20th year.

"Thank you ECCT for contributing to our organisation and helping us keep the arts scene alive in Woodville and the Tararua District, as well as ensuring the treasures of Woodville's history are kept safe and available for all to appreciate," Paula says.
